Prudential Transportation, of Canada, Purchases Trinium's System to Manage Harbor Drayage Operations

PALOS VERDES, California – October 15, 2008 – Prudential Transportation, a leading intermodal trucking company based in Vancouver, Canada, has purchased the Trinium system. Prudential Transportation provides harbor drayage services to importers, exporters, ocean carriers, and retailers in Canada. Trinium Technologies specializes in developing systems that drive financial improvements for intermodal trucking companies.

Prudential Transportation selected several modules from Trinium that will enable the company to improve internal efficiencies and improve overall customer satisfaction. Aside from the core functionality of automating the order, dispatch, billing and driver pay processes, Prudential will also implement the Trinium MobileComm Module (cell based application for mobile dispatch), EDI Module, Event Management Module (automated email alerts and reporting), and Weblink Module (web visibility of order/shipment status). "Our intension was to find a system that was designed for intermodal trucking, which improves our internal efficiencies, and enables us to better compete in the market. We are looking forward to implementing the Trinium system to provide our customers with EDI connectivity, web visibility, and overall better service", said Rex D'Souza, president of Prudential Transportation.

"We are happy to be working with a forward thinking company like Prudential. Their eagerness to implement a new system with mobile communications for their drivers is encouraging. With our cell-based mobile application now certified in Canada, we hope to continue to grow our customer base in the region", said Dennis Lane, vice president of Trinium Technologies.
